THE RIGHTS FOR HOMOSEXUALS TO ACCESS HIGHER EDUCATION IN INDONESIA

Indonesia has contended, through its constitution and prevailing laws and regulations that fundamental human rights, including right to education, are to be enjoyed by all people regardless. Hence discriminatory national legal policies against homosexuals with regard to higher education are nowhere to be found. However, there are still plenty of discriminatory internal policies applied by higher educational institutions that limit homosexuals' right to obtain a proper education.

This book is hoped to provide several violations that the Authors have successfully compiled, along with comprehensive analysis on the synchronization of national laws and regulations, as well as the State's obligation before the international community to respect, protect, and to fulfill the enjoyment of human rights within its jurisdiction.
