Abstract

The development of the Keris era has changed its identity as a national heritage object that passed down. People's views that see crises only as weapons or souvenirs, to be associated with supernatural things make us forget that crises have cultural values that reflect the nation's identity. Provide information and education to the public about the identity of the kris, which has historical value, art, and symbolism. Which is Indonesian culture through visualization, narration, and sound. The importance of Indonesian culture is to be passed down to the next generation as a medium of communication with the audience about the importance of the values in the kris that must be maintain. During the rapid development of the times, we as Indonesian people are expected to prioritize cultural values in life and can be used as a learning method to educate the public.

Keywords: Keris, development, symbol, value
