Abstract

In 2015, the Youth, Peace and Security (YPS) agenda / UNSC Resolution 2250 was born and became a new guideline and reminder for countries to empower youth, especially in any peace-building efforts, at the domestic and international levels. The Jokowi government then began implementing various kinds of program innovations that were considered to be able to help improve the quality of youth as well as stimulate the level of youth involvement in various international issues, including the issue of peace building. Therefore, this paper will focus on analyzing the level of support from the Indonesian government for youth, more specifically to the Youth, Peace and Security agenda. Using primary data sources (government data & reports) and secondary data sources (news, journals & articles), this paper will present a list of information about the programs and strategies taken by the government and the results obtained from these various programs and strategies.

Keyword: Indonesia, Peacebuilding, Youth empowerment, Youth engagement, UNSCR 2250

Pada tahun 2015, Youth, Peace and Security (YPS) agenda / UNSC Resolution 2250 dilahirkan dan dijadikan pedoman serta pengingat baru bagi negara untuk memberdayakan pemuda, terutama dalam setiap upaya pembangunan perdamaian, ditingkat domestic dan internasional. Pemerintahan Jokowi kemudian mulai melaksanakan berbagai macam inovasi program yang dinilai dapat membantu meningkatkan kualitas para pemuda sekaligus menstimulasi tingkat keterlibatan pemuda dalam berbagai isu internasional, termasuk isu pembangunan perdamaian. Oleh karena itu, tulisan ini akan fokus untuk menganalisa tingkat dukungan pemerintah Indonesia terhadap pemuda, lebih khusus agenda Youth, Peace and Security agenda. Dengan menggunakan sumber data primer (data & laporan pemerintah) dan sekunder (berita, jurnal & artikel), tulisan ini akan menyajikan kumpulan informasi tentang program dan strategi yang diambil pemerintah serta hasil yang didapatkan dari berbagai program dan strategi tersebut.
